

Chapter One: Completed

A Celebration of the First Full Cycle of Our Book Club

9 Friends. 8 Books. Countless Conversations.

More Than Just Reading

What started as a group initiative has become a recurring anchor in our lives. Whether we loved the book or debated it, the club gave us an excuse to see each other once a month, explore new ideas, and create a shared topic of conversation that spills over into every other gathering.

“A great initiative... an opportunity to read things differently and see each other.”

Our Intellectual Passport

We traveled through 7 countries and 1 orbit.

Cycle 1 By The Numbers

8

Books Read

From Libre to Claus y Lucas

9

Active Members

Ana Bejarano, Ana
Balaguer, Cris, Elena,
Irene, Juan, Lorena,
Vane, Marina

3

Original Languages
English, Spanish,
French

1

Platform

Google Meet
(+1 Presencial)

100%

Participation

Every member proposed a book

The Heavy Hitters: Identity & Rawness

Betty

Raw and beautiful. A deep dive into family secrets, survival, and identity in Ohio.

Libre

A journey through the collapse of ideals in Albania. Challenged us to rethink politics and growing up.

El lugar

A debate on style—'too dry' or 'perfect'? Many identified personally with Ernaux's precise voice.

The Challengers: Structure & Atmosphere

Delirio: The Puzzle

Laura Restrepo's fragmented narrative forced us to reconstruct the truth amid madness and Colombian history. A challenge of non-linear storytelling.

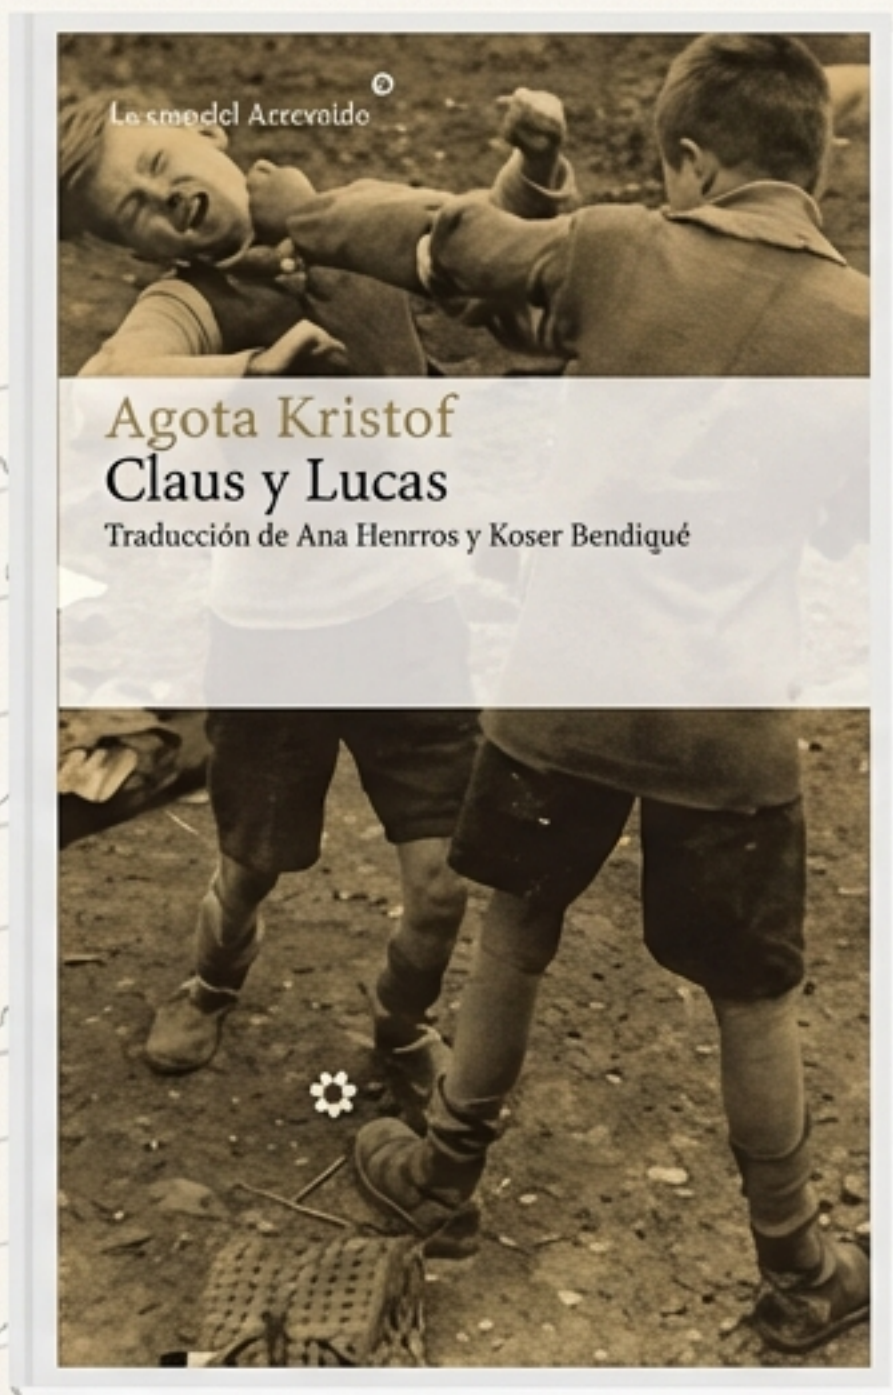

Orbital: The Perspective

A polarizing read. While some found poetry in the duality, others struggled to connect.

Vane found it scary—the silence and vastness of space were more haunting than fascinating.

The Deep Dive: Claus y Lucas

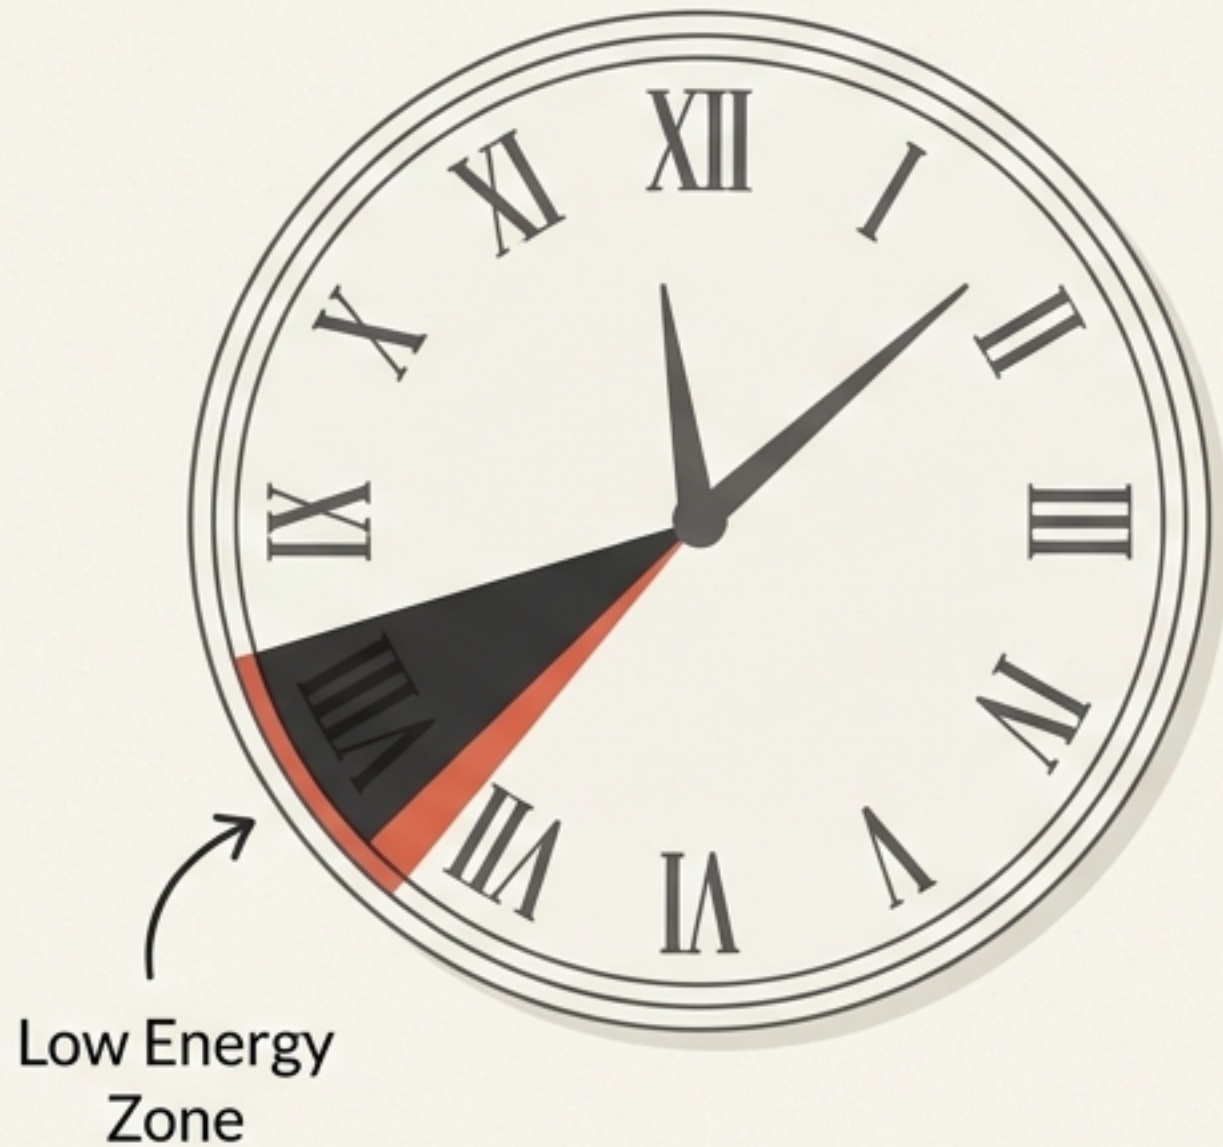

From One Book to a Trilogy

We planned to read just 'El gran cuaderno', but couldn't stop. Almost everyone finished the entire trilogy.

Consensus points included:

- Book 1: The favorite. Powerful, crude, and impactful.
- Book 3: The disappointment. The least convincing part of the journey.
- Key Themes: Abandonment, the 'Sons of a Bitch', and Agota Kristof's dry writing without moral judgment.

Designing Cycle 2: The Energy Audit

The Problem: Our current slot (20:00 - 21:00) hits when our batteries are low.

The Proposal: We need to rethink the 'When'.

Option A:
Earlier on weekdays?

Option B:
Weekend
mornings?
(Sunday Coffee & Books)

Option C:
Keep the slot
but rotate the day?

The Circle: Open or Closed?

Pros

- Fresh perspectives
- New book proposals

Cons

- Changing the 'safe space' vibe
- Logistical challenges on Google Meet

Do we maintain our current intimacy, or do we open the door?

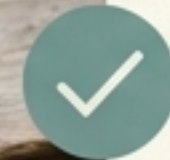

To The Next Shelf

1. Vote on the new time slot.

2. Decide on new members.

3. Volunteer for the first proposal of Cycle 2.

Here is to another year of reading things we never would have picked ourselves.